Overview:
This course introduces students to some important theoretical approaches to the analysis of international political and economic relations. It then applies the approaches to enduring issues in world politics, and concludes by considering some of the emerging problems in the world.

This syllabus and other course materials are available on the course e-learning website, at: https://elearning2.courses.ufl.edu/

Course Goals:
The course has three primary objectives:
1. To demonstrate the importance of theory for describing and explaining international relations.
2. To prompt students to think critically. This involves:
   - distinguishing among general theoretical perspectives;
   - evaluating the strengths and weaknesses of different arguments;
   - identifying the theoretical arguments behind policy prescriptions;
   - applying evidence to judge the validity of various hypotheses about international politics.
3. To acquaint students with the development and characteristics of the contemporary international political and economic systems.

Lectures:
Lectures will begin promptly at 8:30. Please be early.

Readings/Internet Resources:
The following book is required, and we will read it cover-to-cover:

Additional assignments come from the internet. These include videos and other materials that provide historical background, explore contemporary issues, or provide additional discussion of key topics.

Students are also required to read international news coverage in The New York Times each weekday during the semester. The Times is available free to students in boxes across campus. It is also available online at www.nytimes.com, though only a limited amount of content is available free online.

Do the assigned readings before the lecture. The lectures will be based on a familiarity with the readings and will not repeat or summarize them. There is not much reading for this course, but it is important that it be done thoughtfully.
Discussion Sections
Students are REQUIRED to attend their discussion section each week. This is your opportunity to ask questions and get further explanation of the material. It’s also your chance to discuss readings and issues and to have fun arguing with your classmates. Your discussion section grade is based not just on attendance, but on the quality of your participation.

Written Examinations
There will be three exams during the semester.
- The first exam will cover the historical and conceptual foundations laid in the early lectures.
- The second exam will cover sections II through IV on the course plan.
- The third exam, on the final day of the class, will cover sections V and VI.

All students are required to bring a blank 8 ½ x 11 bluebook for each exam. These can be purchased at any local bookstore.

Paper
The paper will ask students to use what they have learned in the course to analyze an argument about international politics. It will be submitted online on December 12. Detailed instructions will be provided later in the semester.

Academic Honesty Policy

The Academic Honesty Guidelines at the University of Florida are designed to develop and engender a community of honor, trust and respect. The academic community of students and faculty at the University of Florida strives to develop, sustain and protect an environment of honesty, trust and respect. Students within the system receive the benefits of the academic pursuit of knowledge, free from the obstacles of lying, cheating and stealing. In return, the Academic Honesty Guidelines demand that students act with integrity in all of their endeavors. Exhibiting honesty in academic pursuits and reporting violations of the Academic Honesty Guidelines will encourage others to also act with integrity. Every student who approaches their studies with honesty and forthrightness suffers when another student attains an unfair advantage by cheating.

Please see the guidelines at: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/studenthandbook/studentrights.php, and especially the sections on “Standard of Ethical Conduct,” “Student Honor Code,” “Academic Honesty Guidelines,” and “Accountability to Academic Honesty.”

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities

Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.

UF Counseling Services

Resources are available on campus for students having personal problems or lacking career and academic goals, which interfere with their academic performance. These resources include:

- University Counseling Center, 301 Peabody Hall, 392-1575, personal and career counseling;
- Student Mental Health, Student Health Care Center, 392-1171, personal counseling;
- Sexual Assault Recovery Services (SARS), Student Health Center, 392-1161, sexual counseling.

Makeup Exams: Makeup exams will be scheduled under the following conditions:

1. There is a good reason, in the judgment of the instructor, for missing the regularly assigned exam.
2. In cases where an absence is foreseeable, request to take a makeup must be received in writing (including email) in sufficient time PRIOR TO THE EXAM DATE to make alternative arrangements.
3. In cases where an absence is not foreseeable, request to take a makeup must be received in writing (including email) AS SOON AS POSSIBLE after the exam date.
