INR 4244 International Politics of Latin America
Spring 2015

Instructor: Kevin Funk, MA
Contact: kevin.funk@gmail.com
Website: http://people.clas.ufl.edu/kevinbfunk/
Office hours: M 3:00-4:00 & W 12:45-1:45, AND 317
Class schedule/location: MWF 5, FAB 0105

Summary and objectives:
This course will introduce you to the major issues, debates, and works of scholarship relating to Latin America’s role in regional, international, and global politics and political economy. While we will trace the evolution of the international politics of the region from the beginning, this course focuses on the period starting with the Cold War. We will pay particular attention to current issues and future horizons relating to Latin America’s place in the global system, including its evolving relationship with the U.S., the growing role of China, and the rise of Brazil. Throughout, we will analyze how thinkers from a variety of fields, perspectives, and locations have sought to make sense of the Latin American experience.

Course format:
To the greatest possible extent, this course will ideally function as a discussion-oriented seminar. That is, your comments and reactions to readings and other materials are to play a fundamental role in guiding the trajectory of the class. As such, participation and deep engagement are expected and will factor heavily into your final grade. I will also aim to bring guest speakers into class several times during the semester. This is designed to be a 6000-word writing course, meaning that you will write a total of no less than 6000 words.

While we will briefly review the basic contours of the fields of Latin American Studies and International Relations at the beginning of the course, time constraints prevent us from doing so in any depth. If you lack background in either area, you may wish to consult the following reference sources (many others exist as well). You are also encouraged to speak to me about this during office hours.

Books & readings:
As befits a course of this nature, the reading load is relatively heavy. I make no apologies for this. I have selected the readings with great care and expect you to read them accordingly. As there are no exams in this class, your ability to read, digest, engage with, and react to the readings will be of great importance both for your grade and our collective experience in this class.
This syllabus draws from an eclectic mix of texts. You will read works from scholars, protagonists, and activists; from Latin Americans reflecting on their own region, and U.S. thinkers for whom Latin America is the “Other”; and from Latin Americanists who are interested in the region for its own sake, as well as those who seek to understand it within a more general context. This diversity is intended to both help guide you in the selection of a research topic, as well as push you to think about broader themes.

To minimize your financial burden, only a few (relatively) inexpensive books are required. They may be purchased from the UF bookstore or obtained elsewhere/through other means. The other readings will be available through the course webpage (details below).

Required texts:

News & current events:
You are expected to follow current events relating to Latin America on your own. Throughout the semester, we will discuss news stories and relate them to course materials. Prominent news stories will also be “fair game” for the quizzes (details below). Though there is a dearth of quality English-language coverage of Latin America, palatable sources include:
- BBC (http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world/latin_america/)
- Al Jazeera (http://www.aljazeera.com/news/americas/)
- The Economist (http://www.economist.com/world/americas)

20 percent: attendance, participation & engagement
In addition to attending class, you are expected to make substantive contributions to discussions, particularly in such a way that shows you have grappled with course materials.

10 percent: reading & current event quizzes
In the spirit of “trust but verify,” I will randomly administer quizzes throughout the semester to determine how faithfully you are keeping up with the reading assignments as well as the news. I will grade them on a “pass/fail” basis.

20 percent: (short) reaction papers
After each unit, you will write a brief response to the corresponding material. I will send prompts, as well as provide additional information, as the relevant dates draw near. These papers are designed to gauge whether you have been following along and contemplating the issues under consideration. must write a minimum of 500 words (and no more than 600) for each paper. To receive full credit, they must be received by midnight on the specified date.

50 percent: research project

This is the largest component of your grade. You will choose a topic/question that is both interesting and important; assemble a bibliography; draw from these sources to determine what we do and do not know about this issue; and finally, elaborate a research plan for pursuing further study of this topic, and delineate what you would expect to find if you carried it out. In so doing, you will learn not only about your topic of interest, but also about the more general process of conducting social science research. We will of course discuss these various steps throughout the semester.

You MUST see me during office hours to obtain approval of your topic before it is due (I will distribute sign-up sheets to facilitate scheduling). Topics can potentially include any aspect of the international politics of Latin America, broadly defined. You are free to choose topics not covered in class.

This project consists of multiple stages, which you will turn in sequentially. You should utilize the feedback you receive on earlier parts to improve the final product. The sum of these parts, once revised and put together into the final paper, must be at least 4000 words (not including the bibliography). This is necessary to receive credit for the writing component of this course. On the last due date (4/27), you will submit the final paper in its entirety: that is, revised versions of the following components, in addition to your research design, all integrated into a cohesive whole (along with a brief conclusion).

Step 1: research topic/proposal (minimum: 500 words)

Clearly state and explain your topic and/or question of interest. Why is it interesting? Why is it worthy of study? At this preliminary stage, what do you think your ideas may contribute? Do you seek to fill a gap in the literature and our collective understanding? What makes your potential contribution unique, and actually worth pursuing? Once revised, this section will be the introduction to your final paper.

Finding a suitable idea can be difficult (and frustrating). Following current events and perusing academic journals may help get the cognitive juices flowing. Examples include: Journal of Latin American Studies; Latin American Research Review; Latin American Politics and Society; and, Latin American Perspectives.

Step 2: bibliography

This is a preliminary list of sources that seem useful. This will almost surely not be an exhaustive list – there has been more written about most topics than any one person could ever hope to read.
You must have at least 10 sources, comprised of a mix of books and academic journal articles. You may wish to gather news articles and other sources as well, though these do not count towards the minimum of 10. We will visit the Latin American Collection early in the semester to help acquaint you with available materials. For the final paper, your bibliography needs to include every source that you have cited and/or consulted – including news articles, etc. You must also cite at least 3 sources from the course readings (that is, for a total of at least 13).

Step 3: literature review (minimum: 2000 words)

Drawing from the bibliography, as well as other sources that you will uncover, here you will review the different arguments that have been made on your topic. Yet a literature review is not merely a compilation of summaries. Rather, while you will need to do some summarizing, the focus is on your analysis of these works, how they can be categorized so that we can make sense of the existing universe of literature, and the strengths and weaknesses of these differing approaches. This is similar to what is often published in academic journals as a “review essay” (examples are posted on the course site).

Step 4: research design & analysis (minimum: 1500 words)

Your analysis of the literature feeds into ideas concerning how to do better. That is, now that you have delineated the major approaches to this topic, as well as their strengths and weaknesses, what do you propose to move our understanding of this topic forward? Design a project that embodies your vision. Assuming sufficient time and financial resources, what would you do to study this topic, and why? What methods would you employ? How would you collect the relevant information? While you cannot actually carry out this project this semester, if you did, what would you expect to find? Why?

Course policies:

- All assignments must be turned in via the course website (https://lss.at.ufl.edu/).
- Late submissions will be penalized at a rate of 10 percent (e.g. from 95 to 85) every 12 hours.
- You can format assignments as you wish so long as the output is easy on my eyes.
- You may use your preferred citation style, provided it is applied consistently. Political science majors are encouraged to adopt APSA style (http://writing.wisc.edu/Handbook/DocAPSA.html).
- In all of your writing assignments, style, syntax, grammar, etc. all count.
- Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at https://evaluations.ufl.edu. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results/.
- Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx.
