This course uses the sometimes true but usually make-believe stories told in popular novels and Hollywood motion pictures to provide insights into the nature of real-life politics in the United States. The focus is mainly on process (political competition and decision making) rather than substance (public policy), and each of the stories we will encounter raises issues that are as relevant today as they were when the tale was originally told. We will consider, for example, whether the temptations of politics and power are beyond the capacity even of fundamentally decent people to resist; whether the actions of organized interest groups promote or undermine the principles of representative government; whether the media glare of contemporary politics weakens the capacity of our leaders and institutions to govern; and whether modern candidate-centered campaigns pose as great a threat to popular democracy as some critics believe. Our goal is not to use politics as a basis for studying the mass culture; that is a course better taught elsewhere (say, in English or Fine Arts). Instead, we will be using elements of the mass culture as a means for better understanding the character of our politics.

Warning: Several of the assigned books and films contain strong language and/or adult themes. Students who might find this offensive should consider taking another course.

Grades will be based on the following:

- Periodic short essays: 50 percent
- Attendance and participation: 30 percent
- Thematic Essay/Final Exam: 20 percent (due Thursday, December 5, 12:00 p.m.)

Students are required to write a short essay (2-3 pages each, featuring issues or themes raised in the book/film) for any four books and any four films (including The West Wing) among the titles listed on the previous page; these essays must be turned in at the next class meeting following our discussion of a book/film. The thematic essay (5-7 pages) involves a similar but somewhat more in-depth review of at least one additional book and one additional film (or two books, or three films) drawn from the supplemental list provided below or approved by the instructor. The nature of these assignments, and of the (optional) final exam, will be discussed more fully in class. All essays will be graded for content and grammar and returned to students with comments.

CAVEAT: With so many choices being built into the structure of the course, there is no excuse for failing to complete the required eight short essays. Any missing essay will receive a grade of zero, so don't lose track of where you stand. There will be no opportunities for extra credit at the end. On the other hand . . . Students who complete all eight short essays by November 1 will receive a one-half letter grade bonus on any two of them (their choice, so long as the accompanying quiz grade was not a zero).

TWO MORE CAVEATS: (1) Students may submit only one essay based on an episode of The West Wing. (2) Those who write a short report on an assigned film (such as Primary Colors) or book (such as The Handmaid's Tale) should not choose the original book/film version for their thematic essay.

ONE FINAL CAVEAT: In the past, some students have assumed that they are only required to read four books, and to watch four films. This is incorrect: You are expected to read/watch all of the assigned books/films. In an effort to encourage everyone to do so, there will be a pop quiz prior to the discussion of each one. The questions will be simple, and easily answered by anyone who has completed the assignment; there even will be a few occasions when students are invited to submit possible quiz questions. Incorrect answers (or unexcused absences) will be treated as evidence that the work was not done, and taken into account when that portion of your grade based on attendance and participation (see above) is calculated. Further, if someone turns in an essay but fails the quiz for a particular book/film, it will suggest that shortcuts may have been taken in writing the essay – and the grade for that essay will be adjusted accordingly.

Minus grades will (if appropriate) be assigned in this course. Information about grades and grading policies at UF can be found at:
http://www.registrar.ufl.edu/catalog/policies/regulationgrades.html

Students are bound by the University of Florida's Student Code of Conduct. Anyone who commits an act of academic dishonesty, such as cheating on exams or committing plagiarism on the written essays, will suffer appropriate sanctions and be referred to university authorities for further action.

Any student with a handicap or special need should notify me (and coordinate with Student Services at 202 Peabody Hall) as soon as possible at the beginning of the semester. Every effort will be made to accommodate your situation within the guidelines set forth by the university.

A class listserv has been established so that I can send you occasional announcements and keep you informed about any changes that might occur in the schedule. You are automatically on the list by virtue of being enrolled in this course. You must, however, be sure either to check the email in your gatorlink account on a regular basis, or to forward all gatorlink messages to an account that you use more frequently.

Note: Students may be tempted to take advantage of the large number of book and movie reviews that are available on the internet. In an effort to remove that temptation, all written assignments must be submitted to an online plagiarism service called turnitin.com. Here is how it works:

The first step is that you need to create a student profile:
1. go to www.turnitin.com
2. click on create user profile
3. fill in your personal email address
4. fill in your personal password
5. type of user: choose student
6. enter class ID (6618672) and password (thumbsup)
7. follow instructions
To log in after creating profile:
1. enter your personal email and password in the box on the upper right hand corner of the home page www.turnitin.com
2. click on POS 4258
3. from there you can submit your paper, just like adding an attachment to an email

Each essay has its own assignment folder. The procedure that you should follow is to (1) give a hard copy of the essay to me during class on the designated date, and (2) submit an electronic copy to turnitin.com at some point on the same day. Any assignment that is turned in late (without approval of the instructor) will be penalized. Any assignment that does not constitute original work by the author will be subject to penalties consistent with the UF Code of Student Conduct.
