Course Description
Public Policy is “whatever governments choose to do or not to do”. This broad definition consists of several steps in the policy process, from policy development and analysis, to implementation and, finally, evaluation. Making public policy is a complex task, particularly in the context of American Federalism, where there exist controversies between the states and the federal government over many policy areas. The last years have marked significant developments over controversial policies, from healthcare to gay marriage, while many policies are still hotly debated (minimum wage, gun control, election reform, among others). Despite the controversial nature of many issues in the American political life, the governments at the state and federal levels cannot simply “change” policy, but rather follow a gradual process which often involves political heat, ongoing public support or discontent, as well as media and elite influence.

Course Objectives
This course provides students the framework to understand the formation, adoption, budgeting, implementation and evaluation of public policy. Through this framework, students will be able to critically assess and engage in the complexity of current controversial policy issues, taking into consideration the political and institutional context of government at the state and federal levels. The goal of this course is for students to develop a grounded view of what “public policy” entails, why it is a complex concept, and how the government responds to current controversies in public policy. By the end of this course, students are expected to be able to apply this knowledge to a “current controversy” and thoroughly demonstrate what the federal or state government(s) “choose to do or not to do” about it.

Course Requirements

i) Attendance/Participation
The success of this class is heavily dependent on your active engagement and contribution to class discussions. You are expected to attend all class meetings and be prepared for an in-depth discussion of the assigned course material. Note that your physical presence in the classroom (attendance) does not equal active participation.
The lectures are organized around topics and readings following the course schedule. This class is aimed to stimulate discussion among the students under my facilitation. In order for this to be a successful course, it is imperative that you do the assigned readings before class, give yourself time to think about them, and prepare yourself to discuss them in class. If you feel uncomfortable speaking in class, make sure to compensate for that by discussing the readings with me during office hours.

ii) Critical Essays (2)
During the course of the semester you are required to write two short essays (about 4-6 pages, double-spaced) on two topics of your choice out of those introduced in the course. We will assign topics during our first meeting. The review essays will be due at midnight before the day each topic is to be discussed in class. The critical essays should discuss, compare, and contrast the readings assigned to a specific topic. A great critical essay is not a summary of the material; on the contrary, you are expected to summarize as little as possible so that you will have enough space left for a thorough critical evaluation of the arguments and evidence present in the readings. What is more, you are expected to go a step further and offer your own perspective on the caveats of the assigned literature by emphasizing aspects that were — intentionally or unintentionally — ignored by the author(s).

Essays have to be 4-6 pages, double-spaced, 12-point font Calibri, with page numbers in the bottom, emailed to me at midnight before the day each topic is to be discussed in class. Please be consistent in the format of your essays.

iii) Final Paper
One final paper is required for this class (10-15 pages, double-spaced). You will choose one public policy out of those introduced in the course, and will address one aspect in the policy process. An integral part of the paper is a detailed overview of the literature on this specific aspect of the policy process, followed by an in-depth analysis of government action (or inaction) on the topic. Papers may take one of the following forms:

- Policy Development; this can include the federal or state levels, or both.
- Policy Implementation; this can include the federal or state levels, or both.
- Policy Evaluation; this can include the federal or state levels, or both.
- Models for Policy Analysis; compare two of the existing policy models and make a case that one of each better explain the policy issue of your choice.

The final paper is due on Monday, December 8 2014. More details about the final paper will be provided as the course develops.

iii) Final Exam
The final exam will be administered on Friday, December 19 2014. You will be presented with 5 current controversies, of which you will choose and write about two. The exam is cumulative, meaning that you are expected to apply everything you have learned throughout the course of the semester in answering the questions. There is no length limit or requirement in regards to your answers; you should provide as big or small an answer you wish, as long as it adequately addresses the question at hand. You are required, however, to bring a blank bluebook.

Please note that in case you miss the exam, you will be allowed to take a make-up if and only if there is a significant reason for your absence, accompanied by appropriate documentation.

Course Policies

I) Late Assignments
A critical essay is late if it has not been submitted (via email to the instructor) by midnight before the day the topic is to be discussed in class. A final paper is late if it has been submitted on E-Learning after 23:59:59 on Friday, December 8, 2014. In both cases, a late submission will be downgraded a letter grade even if it is only a minute late. An additional letter grade will be deducted for each additional day the assignment is late up to a maximum of three days, after which it will receive a 0. You are strongly encouraged to email/upload your assignments early so that you will avoid last minute complications. Excuses for late assignments will not be accepted.

Please note that passing the course requires you to complete all assignments. I generally do not assign “incompletes,” unless presented with extraordinary circumstances, given proper documentation.

II) Professional Conduct
Always be courteous and polite towards your peers and the instructor, addressing them with respect and in a professional manner. Although you are entitled to your own views and opinions, the use of offensive/derogatory language will not be tolerated.

The use of laptops/tablets is allowed during our meetings only if they are used to take notes or review readings. If I detect that you are using your device in any other capacity (i.e. emails, facebook, twitter etc.) you will be asked to leave the classroom and no attendance points will be awarded to you for that meeting. Repeat offenders will experience a significant reduction of their overall course grade.

The use of cellphones (talking/texting) is absolutely prohibited during our meetings. Professional etiquette dictates that your cellphone is silent and out of reach when in class. If it rings and I hear it, you will be asked to set it on silent. If it rings again you will be asked to leave the classroom.

III) Academic Integrity
As a University of Florida student you are expected to abide by the UF Student Conduct & Honor Code. This means that you have pledged to avoid giving or receiving unauthorized aid when performing an academic task. Possible violations of the Honor Code include – but are not limited to – plagiarism, cheating, fabrication, and misrepresentation.

I employ a zero tolerance policy in regards to academic dishonesty. If you cheat you will get an F for the course, while I reserve the right to initiate further disciplinary action against you depending on the severity of your offense. If you are unsure whether a specific action constitutes a violation of the Honor Code make sure to ask the instructor or review the Academic Honesty guidelines at: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/index.php/sccr/process/student-conduct-honor-code.

IV) Disabilities
Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to the Instructor when requesting accommodation.
V) Counseling
Resources are available on campus for students having personal problems or lacking career and academic goals, which interfere with their academic performance. These resources include:

- University Counseling Center, 301 Peabody Hall, 392-1575, personal and career counseling;
- Student Mental Health, Student Health Care Center, 392-1171, personal counseling.
