Course Description

The world after the Second World War has seen an ever-changing landscape, and such changes are accelerated by crucial political, economic, and cultural factors that all intertwine with each other. International Relations is a subfield of the academic discipline of Political Science that studies world politics and international affairs from theoretical and systematic perspectives. In this course, students will be introduced to the core concepts and approaches in the study of international relations as well as the relevant cases to which they can be applied.

A primary objective of international relations scholars is to explore and explain the many phenomena in human society by studying the effects of national and transnational actors in the outcomes or developments of international events. These effects are then facilitated and enhanced by actions such as fighting wars/conflicts, conducting trade, signing treaties/legislations, migrating, and more. Students will be embarking on a journey that will help them better understand the world that we currently live in, and they will be able to better equip themselves with the abilities to ask and answer the “why and how” questions to many world events.

Learning Objectives

By the end of this course, given sufficient efforts, you will:

- Understand the basic structure of international politics;
- Be familiar with some of the major theories and perspectives of international relations as lenses that we can use to learn about our world and conduct our roles in it;
- Be able to apply critically the said theories and approaches to both historical and current issues;
- Be able to identify major actors and factors in international politics as well as their roles.

For the General Education Subject Area Objectives, you may find the information about this course by clicking here (<https://undergrad.aa.ufl.edu/general-education/gen-ed-program/subject-area-objectives/>). The designations of this course are S (Social Science) and N (International).

Required Readings

Textbook - Karen Mingst and Heather Elko McKibben. Essentials of International Relations. 9th Edition. ISBN: 978-0-393-87217-0. <https://wnorton.com/books/9780393872187#!/about-the-book/product-details>

Note: An older edition of this book (8th edition) is available for download online. It has roughly the same outline, but some of the case studies are outdated and it is one chapter short. Make sure to prepare for necessary adjustments if you decide to use that version of the book.

Reading – Besides the required textbook, articles, book chapters, and online materials will be used in this class. All the readings are mandatory, and they are supposed to complement the lectures and the textbook. While some of them will be uploaded directly to the Canvas Files, others are freely available online.

You should read the assigned materials before the given day's lecture. In other words, all readings that are listed under a certain date should be finished before that date. I will make all non-textbook readings freely available through Canvas or directly through links on the syllabus. It is imperative that you have a good comprehension of the material covered in both the readings and the lectures. To do this, always seek to get the basic arguments first. Then, as you read the text, you should annotate it, such as highlighting or circling essential messages. Take notes as you see fit. It is always better to get the basic arguments of every piece than to read every sentence.

Course Grades Distribution

Announced Quizzes: 25%

- 8 quizzes will be distributed to students across the entire semester. Each quiz will consist of short-answer questions and multiple choices. Each quiz can be finished within 15 minutes. They will be based on both class lectures and readings.
- The lowest quiz grade will be dropped. The remaining 7 quiz grades will be used to calculate the weighted grade. Each quiz will have 6 points and weigh 5% of your final grade. A quiz will be announced on the day before it takes place.

Exams: 45%

- 3 written exams. Both exams have equal weights: 15% of your final grade.
- Each exam will have two sections: multiple-choice and true/false questions; short answer questions.
- More explanation will be given for this as we approach the first exam.

Weekly Online Discussion Posts: 20%

- 5 weekly posts. The last week of the class will not have a post.
- I will assign discussion board posts every Thursday at 5:30 pm. Each discussion board post is due 48 hours after its commencement.
- The discussion posts are designed to encourage you to think critically and constructively about the material you learned that week. You will be challenged to apply the knowledge that you possess and provide concise answers.
- Each discussion post should take you no more than 1.5 hours to complete. Each will be worth 2 points.
- A successful discussion answer should be at least 250 words.

Unannounced Attendance: 10%

- Students are required to participate in the class actively and respectfully. You should contribute to the class by, among other things, showing up on time, answering/asking questions, taking appropriate notes, and participating in class dialogues.
- Throughout the entire duration of this summer course (6 weeks; 29 class periods), I will be taking sporadic roll call attendance to encourage in-person participation in the class. It is imperative that students attend class lectures on time so that they can follow along with the progression of class content.
- There will be a total of 10 roll calls taken throughout the 29 class periods of this course. No absences will be excused without proof of excused leave (see below for further information on the attendance policy).

Assignment	Total Score	Weight
Announced Quizzes	$6 * 7 = 42$	25%
Exams I & II & III	$3 * 100 = 300$	45%
Weekly Discussion Posts	$5 * 2 = 10$	20%
Roll Call Attendance	$10 * 1 = 10$	10%

Attendance and Submission Policies

Attendance and active participation are mandatory for students. Excused absences must be consistent with university policies and require appropriate documentation. Additional information can be found here (<https://catalog.ufl.edu/UGRD/academic-regulations/attendance-policies/>). Excused absences will be given make-up opportunities for exams and quizzes, provided the affected students have proper documentation.

To account for unforeseen circumstances, online assignments (in this class's case, only the weekly discussion posts) will be given a 1-hour grace period for submission. Although your assignment will be marked as late, there will not be any penalty. No assignments will be accepted after the passing of that period.

Grading Policy

All quizzes and exams will be hosted in-class. Late submissions will not be accepted, except in the case of documented illness, legal, or civic/university duty situations. If you miss an assignment and have a valid excuse, please email me within the same week to discuss making up the work.

The following cutoffs will be used for grades:

	A 93–100%	A- 90–93%
B+ 87–90%	B 83–87%	B- 80–83%
C+ 77–80%	C 73–77%	C- 70–73%
D+ 67–70%	D 63–67%	D- 60–63%

A minimum grade of C is required for general education credit. For more information on the UF policies for assigning grade points (and GPA calculations), please visit <https://catalog.ufl.edu/UGRD/academic-regulations/grades-grading-policies/#gradingpoliciestext>.

Course Evaluations

Students are expected to provide professional and respectful feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at <https://gatorevals.aa.ufl.edu/>. I take this feedback seriously and use your constructive feedback to improve the course for future offerings. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester; you will be notified when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at the link provided above.

Resources

Accommodations

Students with disabilities requesting accommodation should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, you will receive an accommodation letter to share with me. If you need accommodation, please follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

Academic Integrity

All students are required to abide by the University of Florida’s Academic Honesty Guidelines, which may be viewed at <http://www.dso.ufl.edu/judicial/procedures/honestybrochure.php>. Most obviously, this means cheating on exams and plagiarism on papers is unacceptable. Examples of plagiarism include but are not limited to: submitting entire papers written by others, submitting portions of papers written by others, copying text without quotations and proper citation, or paraphrasing text without proper attribution in a footnote. In addition to harming your professional career, academic dishonesty will destroy your ability to learn from this class.

In-Class Recording

While students are allowed to record video or audio of class lectures, the ways these recordings may be used are strictly controlled. The only purposes allowed are for personal educational use, in connection with a complaint to the university, or as evidence in, or in preparation for, a criminal or civil proceeding. All other purposes are prohibited. Students may not publish recorded lectures without the instructor’s written consent.
